

Community Health Worker (CHW) Curriculum Recognition Overview

Effective 11.1.2022

Overview

INCHWA's recognition of your CHW training means:

- Public support for your training indicating that it aligns with both national and state standards for CHW training,
- Distribution of a Student Certificate by INCHWA to each student upon training completion, and
- Inclusion of a $40 INCHWA membership fee in your tuition fee that will be forwarded to INCHWA for a 1-year INCHWA membership for each student.

Requirements

For your CHW training to be recognized by INCHWA, you must meet the following requirements:

Your Training Organization must:

- Offer statewide training (via an online platform or by delivery from training facilities throughout the state),
- Provide one of the following:
 - Academic credit or have an agreement with an educational institution that provides academic credit upon completion of CHW training
 - Supporting evidence of quality in training development, presentation skills, and a commitment to developing CHWs' professional citizenship.*
- Provide a pathway for both community members and traditional students (if an academic institution) to access your CHW training, and
- Be actively engaged in advancing the CHW profession.

*A minimum of two developers/instructors are required for CHW training developed without an agreement with an educational institution.

Your CHW training must:

- Be a minimum of 40 training hours,
- Adhere to both national and state standards for CHWs,
- Provide exposure to organizations in the community where a CHW might work (This can be in the form of a capstone project or assignments providing the student exposure to community services and resources), and
- Be developed and taught by instructors with experience in training and community health work.

Fees

- To be eligible to become an INCHWA Recognized Certified CHW Training Organization, your Training Organization must first purchase a Training Partner Membership ($2,000 for three years). This fee is non-refundable, and payment does not guarantee recognition.
- After membership is paid, an additional one-time fee of $5,000 is due with the submission of the Training Organization Assessment. This fee provides your Training Organization with three consulting hours. This fee is non-refundable, and payment does not guarantee recognition.

Consulting Hours

As part of this fee, you are entitled to 3 consulting hours with INCHWA. Your Training Organization is required to utilize at least 1.5 consulting hours. Content discussed during these consulting hours is left to the discretion of your Training Organization. INCHWA can offer consulting on the development of any of the following:

- Student Success Instrument (used to measure student characteristics to ensure they are a good fit for the CHW course),
- Course content, including the integration of:
 - Case studies,
 - Kinesthetic, auditory, and visual learning, and
 - Student learning resources,
- Assessments,
- Quality assessment procedures,
- Remediation for unsuccessful students, and
- Completion of the CHW Training Development Matrix.

Consulting hours can be used until the application is approved. If, after 3 hours of consultation, your Training Organization feels unprepared to submit the CHW Training Development Assessment, INCHWA can offer additional consulting hours. Additional consulting sessions are $250/hour.

Timeline

The process for recognition may last from 3-12 weeks and depends on the amount of time your Training Organization can dedicate to CHW training development. Once the application is submitted for final approval, INCHWA will need four weeks to complete the approval process. If changes are needed to the application, each iteration will take two weeks to review.

Recognition Period

Recognition is valid for three years.
